

There is an overabundance of gratuitous violence (as well as graphic sexuality and base language) on tv today. I would hope that there would be a push to return to simpler, more tasteful programming sometime in the immediate future. All of this, allowed within the family hours, is reaching our children, cheapening life and desensitizing them to the plight of the victims.